The Library has its own mobile application, the Biblioteca UJI app, designed to locate books and study booths on the different floors of the Library.

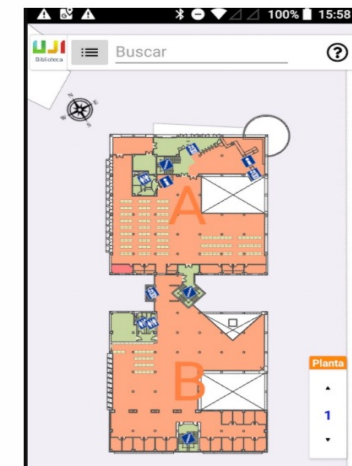

The search can be carried out by entering keywords from the title, author, etc. or also the shelf notation of the publication. The application shows whether it is available for loan, and the exact floor, room and shelf where it is located. It also allows you to calculate a route from a starting point to the selected book or booth.

This application is available for both Android and iOS and has been developed by the GEOTEC research group at the UJI and the company Ubik Geospatial Solutions. It can be downloaded from Google Play for Android and the App Store for iOS (iPhone).

How to use the Biblioteca UJI app

To look for a book, write some keywords (e.g. part of the title or the name of the author), or the shelf notation of the book (e.g. PN1992). To look for a booth, write the word 'cabina' (booth) and its number (e.g. cabina 112). The result of the search is displayed as a list of books or booths that contain the query terms.

- Available items show the icon  and those that are not available display this icon .
- Select a result marked as available to locate it on the map. On small screens (e.g. on mobile phones), the icons  and  can be used to change between the list of results and the map by  and .
- At the bottom right, the element  shows the floor that of the selected item is on and can be used to view other floors.
- The element consisting of  and  can be used to calculate routes from a specified starting point to the item selected from the results of the search. Use  to specify the starting point of the route and  to delete the start of finish points of the route. The part of the route shown in red is on the floor being displayed and the rest of the route appears in grey.
